The American Jockey Club Ruces-October Meeting at Jerome Park.

The American Jockey Club presents for its fall meeting a brilliant programme. Six races are to take place each day, and the meeting will present every variety of horse race "on the flat," from three-quarters of a mile to four miles, as well as steeple chases and hurdle

On the first day (October 7) a truly grand entertainment will be given. The first race will be a handlcap sweepstakes for all ages, a mile and a quarter, for which twenty-one have been nominated-a good lot, securing plenty of starters. The second race will be the Champion Stakes, for three-year-olds, $100 each, half forfeit, with $1,500 added, &c., two miles, for which there are seventy-seven nominations, including about all the good colts and fillies in the country. A very large field will probably start for this important event. say nothing of the probability that of so many there must be some good ones yet "in the dark," those already nt from fine performances are sufficiently numerous to guarantee an interesting contest. Harry Bassett will doubtless be a great favorite, in view of his numerous successes; but he will probably have to contend with Nellie Gray, Monarchist, By the Sea, Elsie, John Merryman, Eolus, Mary Clark, McKinney, Auriola, Hilderic, Alroy, Nellie Ransom, Frank Ross, the Censor-Julia colt and others; and those familiar with the racing of the year will recognize among those named a number of dangerous customers. The third race of the day will be the Nursery Stakes, for two-year-olds, $50 entrance, play or pay, with $1,000 added, &c. ; one mile—thirty-four nominations. A glance at the list of nominations will discover more than a dozen probable and hopeful starters-St. Patrick, King Ernest (imported), Blenkiron (imported), Eclipse-Maud colt, Citizen, War Jig, Vandal-Margravine colt (brother to James A. Connolly), Jo Danlels, Woodbine, Victoria, Wade Hampton, Experience Oaks, besides several from the stables of Mr. J. S. Watson, Mr. R. W. Cameron and others. Among such a lot it will be exceedingly difficult to designate a winner, and we predict that this will be one of the greatest betting races of the meeting. The fourth race of the day will be threequarters of a mile, for all ages. The fifth, a sweepstakes for four-year-olds, $500 entrance, $100 forfeit, four miles-a private sweepstakes-to which the following spirited turfmen are the subscribers, viz. :- Messrs. J. J. O'Fallon, Francis Morris, D. D. Withers, Denison & Crawford, T. W. Doswell, L. W. Jerome & Co., A. Belmont, F. M. Hall, John F. Purdy, Hunter & Travers and M. H. Sanford. Races of four miles are always interesting and generally doubtful, as something more than speed is required to win them; and the money and ambition invested in this one will be likely to secure a good race. The sixth and last race of the day will be a grand handicap steeple chase, about two and a half miles, over fences, hedges, ditches, walls, water, hurdles, &c., for a purse of $800, the entrance to which is free, and there are many good horses in preparation for it. The daring leaps in steeplechases render them intensely exciting, and it has become a necessity to the successful management of race courses to include them in programmes. Such is the bill of entertainment for the first day, giving promise of an extraordinary nount of sport. The races for the other days of the meeting will be equally numerous and varied. Indeed, the meeting cannot fail to be one of surpassing interest, and, as the club authorities have wisely divided time between sport and business by appointing Baturday, Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday for racing, and leaving the intervening days for attention to business, the stands should on each day be filled to overflowing.

THE DUKE D'AUMALE.

What He Is Reported to Have Replied to the Offer of the Presidency of the Republic.

The Duke d'Aumale is reported by the Journal Semaphore to have made the following remarks to a deputy of the National Assembly:—

We are, you and I, quite powerless. Suppose I accept the Presidency of the republic on the terms offered by your friends, what will follow? Do you think I shall be able to keep the trust which you would confer on me? Is it to maintain and consolidate the republic that you would choose me? You know very well that my ideas, traditions, iriends and family will not permit me to fulfil such a programme. But even if I should take advantage of my position to establish a monarchy, what kind of a monarchy, I ask of you, am I to establish? For whose benefit shall I make a coup d'état? For my benefit? I did not think of such a thing, for I should be looked upon as an ambitious adventuer, and people would be right, for I am no more entitled to it than you are. I could only work for my nephew, the Count de Paris; but my nephew would, perhaps, recognize the Count de Chambord as Henri V. Thus I would only establish Henry V. with his white flag, abjuring my pasi, the past of my family and the conquests of Is3o. M. Thiers has made many faults, I grant it, but after all it is around him that we must rally, because by the prolongation of his powers you will gain time.

You are summoned, not to try criminal cases, but to say what criminal cases shall be presented for trial. In the discharge of this duty you will be governed by the same principles of law which govern Grand Juries in Maine and Montana, in theoreta and Arizona; principles of law everywhere applicable throughout the republic. The crimes of murder, arison, larcely, bigamy, adultery and riot in Utah are the same crimes elsewhere throughout Christendom. If there is anything peculiar in the situation in Utah, it is the peculiar conduct of some men here, and not any peculiar principles or policy that are to be enforced here. Utah belongs to the United States, and the reople of Utah, like the people of the rest of the country, are amenable to the laws of the United States.
Those who doey the laws arists be, shall be protected in their rights. Those who do not must answer at the bar of justice, and those men of influence who in practice defiantly trampe upon the laws is to feet the firm grip of the law rather than the obscure men whom they have misled, Gentlemen, it is your duty and mine to enforce the laws. Let us do so without fear, lavor, affection, prejudice or the hope of reward. Justice McKean, in his charge to the jury, said :-

AMUSEMENTS. STEINWAY HALL-VIENNA LADY ORCHESTBA .-

The first season in this city of this novel and interesting musical organization is now drawing to a close. Only three nights remain, as on Thursday the young laules pay a visit to Brooklyn. They have been received with undoubted favor by the metropolitan public and showed a marked improvent in each performance. Their programme last Strauss and a very pretty arrangement of Schubert's "Wanderer." The appearance of ladies in an orchestra, which has facilierto been the exclusive province of the sterner sex, is a subject calculated to excite cians. The result has proved favorable, as the ladies have exhibited a rare delicacy and grace in their management of the various instruments that compensated to a great extent for their want of power. In a smaller hall than stemway's the effect would be more decided, and the absence of brass instruments would not be so much felt. The experiment has, however, solved the problem which might perplex the advocates of woman's rights—whether the gentler sex can take the piace of those horribly stupid-looking people from avenue C, who generally make up the rank and hie of an orchestra. The young prima donna, Mile. Elzer, has already become a real lavorite. Her fine, sympatheste, highly cultivated voice, and broad, dramatic school of singing, appeals alike to the critic and the public. If her histrionic abilities in course of time prove equal to her vocal she must be a valuable addition to the opera, as we have but few prime donne of that sencol on the stage at present. A finer bartione than Herr Müller has not been heard on our boards in many years, and it is only a pity that he cannot have an opportunity of displaying his talents on the operant stage this season. The debat, or rather rentree after ten years, of the celebrated Madame Fabbri, whose performances with Stigelia and Formes will be remembered, has been postponed for the present rima donna, Mine. Rotter, has ho longer the voice to fill important redes. Mine. Fabori and Mile. Fauline Canissa, who has just returned from Europe, would strengthen the German opera company to an incalculable extent. A strong evidence of the popularity of this trouge is the lact that they have given concerts here every night for nearly two weeks to large audiences (averaging such), and the difficulties of producing such a result are known to every metropolitan manager and to the public. Even Bateman, with his concert troupe at the opening of Steinway Hail, did not meet with clans. The result has proyed favorable, as the ladies have exhibited a rare delicacy and grace in NIBLO'S-CARL, THE FIDDLER.-To what further dramatic manity an admiration for broken English will lead it is difficult to predict. That Mr. Charles Gayler, the champion of the fragmentary drama, is the man most likely to solve the problem, we are fain to admit. This unfortunate being has led himself into the delusion that he can construct a drama from the threadbare incidents which have amused the playgoing public for three generations, provided his hero talks the language of Chatham street. analyze such a play would be as likely to result in a success as the same process applied to the veal pies in "Pickwick" in the hope of finding whose kittens had been sacrificed. It is the old story of a stolen child recovered through the means of a song of happy childhood, which we thought we had heard the last of in "One Touch of Nature," not to speak of the legend known as "The Wept of the Wishion Wish." Acound this is grouped a number of mechanical figures which all up what remains of three mortal acts. The shited dialogue of an order of romantic draina long since relegated to the Bowery and the transpontine theatres of London, has been ransacked to find dualogue for these automatons. The bold, bad, cruef parent, the pure, genele girl who is asked to wed a libertine, the poor but proud youth who loves the wealthy secondrel's supposed child, and who becomes the rightful heir in spite of the villan's toils, the wronged woman who has suffered in silence for twenty-live long years, to speak her mind in the last scene—all are dragged from their Orlental graves. Then, of course, comes the tramphant broken Englishman, who smooths all difficulties at the propor pitch of voice. The first act is devoted to the scealing of the child. The second act discovers her ten years after educated to the point of simplicity. She supposes herself Dora Bates, the daughter of Harper Bates, who promises her hand to a mercenary idiot (Hudson Wayne), under the threal of States Prison, made by the lidot's uncle (Dickson Scrawl), a lawyer. But she is loved by Payton Boyd, and in the most frigid manner declares that she returns the youth's passion. It is difficult to say whether this scene takes place by night or day, for the young lady is described as walking in the garden in full view of the young man. A wandering musician, who, by the way, is not a niddler but a guitar player, is heard singing without by the guests who are assembled at a ball in honor of Dora's birthday, the risodout that he is looking for his sister Hidd. He recogniz analyze such a play would be as likely to result in a success as the same process crammed into the part of the nephew, a vulgarized dilution of Lord Dundreary, who culminates his offensiveness by appearing upsy in the last scene. Mr. Hastings as Harper Bates is, if possible, more angular than the part. The heroine is Miss Minnio Shaddern in the the first act and Miss Frankie McLellan in the other two. The latter lady has much to learn before her simplicity is more than mawkish. The injured Polly Searles, who is disgustingly forced into an admission of her moral shortcomings, is played by Miss ida Vernon with as much finish as the disgraceful theme of ner part will admit. There are some "laddes" and "gentlemen" introduced, who are lair specimens of scene shifters in seedy garments. Since the play has appeared we can only rest our hope in its early demise. An overture composed by G. Operti was played before the piecs. HERR WACHTEL makes his second appearance at the Stadt Theatre to-night in "The Postiliton of Lonjumeau," and his third appearance on Friday in "frovatore."

Hayti Wants Peace with Dominica-British

Intrigue Folled. It is stated that Mr. Stephen Preston, Minister of Hayti, who lately returned from a short visit to his country, has been instructed by his government to ask the cabinet of Washington to use its friendly offices in order to bring to a satisfactory conclusion the difficulties existing between the republics of Dominica and Hayti. The intervention of the United States is to effect the permanent establishment of peace, the settlement of the boundary line separating the two countries, the final adjustment of the claims pending between them, and the prevention of further revolutions by unscrupulous military leaders under the guarantees of the United States and of the principal European Powers. The following extracts of a letter from a high authority in Port au Prince gives an exact account of the stuation this subject:-

PORT AU PRINCE, Sept. 9, 1871.

Mr. Spencer St. John, the British Charje d'Affaires, arrived here on the 30th of July last, after a protracted absolute of several months in kurope. On the 18th of Luly last, after a protracted absolute of several months in kurope. On the 18th of Luly last, after a protracted absolute of St. Domilio on board an English guabout. The object of that visit was to present his residentials in the capacity of Charge d'Affaires near the republic of Dominica. On his arrival he was informed that President haze had left for Azua. Not deeming it proper to wait for his return Mr. St. John presented his letters to the Secretary for Foreign Affairs, who accredited him at ones. After having discussed some matters relating to several British clasms, which were readily admitted, Mr. St. John asked in an mondicial manner if it was true that President Baez had signified, some time ago, his intention to abandon the project of annexation if the government of Hayl was willing to make peace with him? To that question the Secretary thought proper to give no answer. Mr. St. John is well known in St. Domingo as being opposed to the annexation scheme, as well as for his antagonism to the Salnave party, his frendly feelings for President Saget and for the people of Hayti. This being kept in view, its not to be wondered at the extreme displeasure felt by President Baez. On learning that the British Charge d'Affaires, who was presented to him on the following day. in view, it is not to be wondered at the extreme displanaries fell by President Base. On learning that the Britist Charge d'Affaires, who was presented to him on the following day, had been/pfictually societited, Base could do nothing except conceal his back bursor at this univelome addition to the diplomatic corps in St. Domingto, Mr. St. John said to the President that he had been obliged to ark for the protection of, and the americation to, the United States on account of the agreessive attitude assumed by the government of Hayti, but that he was willing to give up the project should President Saget consent to treat with him and establish good and peaceful relations between the two republies. Should this be the case, added Mr. St. John, he was authorized, but unofacially, to do his best to help to effect a satisfactory result for both parties. Beez refrained from giving an answer until the following day, and, after having consulted with the American agent, he told the British Charge d'Alfaires that he could not decide positively as to his future intentions before knowing the views of the government of the United States. The day after the Secretary of State, Mr. Gautier, left for New York to see General Grant and make some arrangements in favor of President Bacz. Mr. St. John, seeing that he was losing time in trying to prevail upon the United Magistrate of St. Domingo to accept his friendly offices, returned to Port an Prince, where he exercises also the functions of Charge d'Affaires.

Inspector.

The boilers were properly inspected at the required time, and the statement that he had neglected to do this for years was disproved by the fact that the steamer had been built but two years when the accident resulting in the death of three
